Blue Code Alert for All Humanity: The Rockefeller Foundation Announces "The Second Contraceptive Revolution"

by Suzanne M. Rini

For many, the icon for the micromanagement of humanity in the well-planned future dystopia is the microchip, installed in humans and contraceptive revolution", new world order watchers who might have heard the report no doubt rolled over and went back to

Because of the Rockefeller forces' gigantic apparatus stretching across finance, academia, government, science, politics, religion and culture, they are in the position to cause the cultural ground to shift in order to make their policies seem the logical ones for the population to adopt.

and used to track their movements or, by the introduction of foreign DNA, to cause them to think and act away from their true selves. While this may indeed come to pass, it is also a good foil for the fact that the main tools of complete control of humanity have been deemed by the architects of this madness to be centered around reproductive control.

Thus, although the Rockefeller Foundation (RF) has, in its 1994 Annual Report, announced "a sec-sleep at their shortwave radios.

The Missing Eugenical Link

Yet, there are some anti-new world order writers who do understand eugenics' role in the coming horror. For instance, The New American, in its April 3, 1995 edition noted, when speaking of the recent Cairo population control conference, "Although the Cairo program was swaddled in assurances that 'education' rather than coercion would be the focus of the UN-directed anti-natal campaign, the history of the world body's support for genocidal population control policies suggests that such assurances will be as evanescent as a handful of snowflakes."

On innumerable levels, the main patron of this micromanagement of humanity through reproductive control has of course been the Rockefeller Foundation. This has been so well-reported in my other Catholic Family News articles that it can be taken for granted. Thus, with so much gone before, we can demonstrate only one major point here: the Rockefeller Foundation patiently waits until it can deliver the means to its end. That is, until the science and technology of especially new, very bizarre and lethal "contraceptives" are developed at the RF's and their colleagues' expense, and then ready to be guided, through propaganda and/or direct force, onto populations, they know that it is useless to waste money on the organizations put in place to guide the eugenical regime to its logical and tragic end.

Rockefeller, Jr.'s Lesson on Making Eugenics Investments

Demonstrating this relationship between the means and the ends is a quote from the Rockefeller Foundation house biographers, Harr and Johnson, in their book, The Rockefeller Century. Discussing John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s quandary, i.e., how "to stimulate more activity domestically in the birth control movement [and how] ... to persuade the Rockefeller Foundation to do something more about population questions on the international scene", the authors divulge the principle guiding Rockefeller "Junior's" donations to Planned Parenthood in the late 1940s:

"He did not give more than $20,000 a year, usually, to Planned Parenthood, although he was capable of giving much more. The reason was not lack of interest, but uncertainty as to what to do effectively. The conviction had grown among advocates of family planning that significant progress could not be made until a breakthrough in contraceptive technique occurred. The contraceptives then in wide use, the condom and the diaphragm, were regarded as not nearly good enough." (Emphasis added)

The Pill: Aborting America by Contraceptive

As pointed out by the recently formed group, "Protestants Against Birth Control", in their newsletter, "Everything You Never Wanted to Know About Birth Control, A Guide for Engaged and Newlywed Couples", by Jon and Maria Valentine, "... [O]nly a few methods of birth control called contraception are truly contraceptives. These are the condom, the diaphragm, the cervical cap, and the anti-sperm agents ... [T]hese methods do not cause abortions ..."

But all the other so-called contraceptives do. And it was the research and development on the entire arsenal of such abortifacients, all lyingly puffed as merely "contraceptive" that the Rockefeller Foundation and its fellow travellers funded for both home and international population control use on the "masses", the anthill of humanity. Abortion did not begin with the decriminalization of surgical abortion in 1973 through Roe v Wade. For since the advent of the first birth control pill decades before, "legalized" abortion had already claimed millions of newly fertilized human beings.

The Totem Ready, the Second Contraceptive Revolution Can Be Announced

And now, the new stable of abortifacient "contraceptives" are at the ready: the "vaccinations against pregnancy", which dangerously suppress the human immune system in order to abort any newly fertilized human being; the anti-sperm and egg production agents which are, in effect, forms of temporary sterilization; the nonsurgical forms of sterilization such as the Quinacrine pellet; new IUDs; the implants such as Norplant; and the injectables such as Depo-Provera which, in the 1970s, had to be dumped on the Third World because of its known, horrible side effects for women.

The aim of such successful research and development is changed social policy, the type that marches toward complete social control through control of reproduction. So, now that the means are in place, the social policy has been unveiled. In its 1994 Annual Report, the Rockefeller Foundation announced "the second contraceptive revolution". Shortly thereafter, the Institute for Medicine, part of the very old and powerful Rockefeller-founded National Research Council, released its 365-page study "Best Intentions: The Well Being of Families and Children". (Note: It was the National Research Council which funded, among scores of other things, Alfred Kinsey's abusive and fraudulent sex research).

Propaganda: the First Law of Eugenics

The old trick of the RF and its eugenicist oligarchs is to invent a problem, define it, and then appoint themselves to solve it. Thus, "The Best Intentions" lays down the premise that a full 60% of all U.S. pregnancies are "unintended". Then this "unintendedness" is linked to the guilty parties' not using, or not using efficiently, "long-term contraception". "Long-term contraception" has, through this study, been given the status of a civic virtue. And the civics class around it is also promised by the same study.

Although this new chant about "unintendedness" is as transparent as the 1970s "population bomb", it doesn't matter. For, whatever the Rockefeller Foundation wants to promote as "reality" is quickly advanced as true and desirable. For instance, when "Best Intentions" was released in late April, 1995, the major television networks dutifully recited both the premise and the prescription of the study. On the day that the study was open for media coverage, this was done absolutely uncritically by the supine reporters on the evening news on every network the day the study was promulgated. The words "unintended pregnancy" fell from their lips, followed by "long-term contraception" with the same assertiveness they would have used had they said, "Fire broke out and consumed the offices of the Rockefeller Foundation in New York City."

Listen Up! You Might Be among the Guilty

"The Best Intentions" study very emphatically makes the point that the offending parties, those producing or aborting "unintended" children, are not just unwed teenagers. Study committee chair, Leon Eisenberg, who is the Maude and Lillian Presley Professor of the dubious academic discipline called "Social Medicine" at Harvard Medical School, laid down the law against harboring that perception: "The image we have of who is getting pregnant unintentionally must be grounded in reality, not in social mythology."

The guilty come from all social strata and this must change. Change is the elixir and the yeast of the Rockefeller propaganda machine. Americans love change and now they shall have a type of change that will be made to sound good and American. And since this change will focus on new forms of misnamed contraception, the Americans, who have taken to contraception as the totem of sexual liberation, will rush to behold and partake in the newest items for the totem.

Re-Greasing the Apparatus

"The Best Intentions" is a changing of the eugenical guard. The emphasis is to shift away from surgical abortion to long-term contraception. In 1973, Dr. John Knowles, then President of the Rockefeller Foundation, ordered a national apparatus to be put into place to speed the bloody plow of abortion so as to produce what he foresaw as 1.4 million abortions per annum. Now, "The Best Intentions" calls upon no less than the "philanthropic foundations" to lead the way for this new "challenge". Like the Knowles dictum, the new study also demands that every institution and layer of society, from the federal and state bureaucracies to the family and school do their part to proselytize long-term contraception as priority social policy in the U.S.

The willingness of tied-in and important entities to cooperate with the RF's newest phase in the eugenic shape-up of humanity is evidenced by the fact that study was financed by long-time Rockefeller shills, the U.S. Public Health Service, the Carnegie Corporation of New York, and the growingly ominous Robert Wood Johnson Foundation (RWJ). — A note on the latter is that it is the funder of "Interfaith Care-Givers", which has been heartily embraced by many Catholic dioceses, even though (or perhaps, because) Robert Wood Johnson Foundation is one of the major funders of abortion.

The RWJ Foundation is also the main power pushing managed care, a euphemism for eugenics in health care. It was the RWJ Foundation which supplied the Clinton Health Care Plan, which was not really theirs at all, with all of its advisors. And, when the plan failed at the national level, the RWJ spent a war chest on moving it out into the states. (This writer will have a future article on this in CFN).

In fact, RU-486 is no more guilty of abortion than the dozens of other abortifacient contraceptives already with us.

Yes, Virginia, There Is a Eugenic Santa Claus, but He's Called the "Unseen Hand"

Returning to "The Best Intentions", it shouldn't be thought of as something new, but rather something which has been a long time shaping up, and deliciously planned years ago. To paraphrase St. Paul, "The Rockefeller Foundation is patient but not kind."

The purpose of this article is not so much to opine as to how the RF and its fellow eugenicists will implement the dastardly plan, but rather to emphasize that its forceful roots were planted some time ago. Within that, the even deeper point is that because of the Rockefeller forces' gigantic apparatus stretching across finance, academia, government, science, politics, religion and culture, they are in the position to cause the cultural ground to shift in order to make their policies seem the logical ones for the population to adopt.

As usual, the "unseen hand" can be plainly spotted through dumpsters of documentation. And once it is, the "unseen hand" becomes more focused, looking more like an iron fist slowly withdrawing itself from its velvet glove.

To vivify and demonstrate how "the fix" is put in concerning long-term contraception as a means of social control and human engineering, let's go back, first to the 1940s and then to 1969-1971. While it won't be pleasant for those who still believe that abortion came out of feminism or Planned Parenthood per se, it certainly is time for a wake-up call so that ut aliquod fiat, (Latin for "that something might be done"). For not naming the Rockefellers as the engine powering eugenics has only ensured that they have no opposition.

Hormone Recipes from Auschwitz Greenhouses: the American Connection

As Rockefeller, Jr. said in the 1940s, there was a burning need to go beyond the true contraceptives. This then brings to light the

Robert Henry Goldsborough, in their The Network of Power and Part II The New World Order: Chronology and Commentary, Dr. Alan Guttmacher, then the President of Planned Parenthood — World Population, stated, "Each country will have to decide its own form of coercion, and determine when and how it should be employed. At present, the means available are compulsory sterilization and abortion. Perhaps someday a way of enforcing compulsory birth control will be feasible." (Emphasis added)

1970: Howard K. Smith: Crypto-Eugenicist Speaks

For the next year, 1970, Cuddy and Goldsborough quote ABC correspondent, Howard K. Smith, writing in the Humanist, "It is going to cause a wrench in sentiment and attitude, but we are going to have to adjust to limiting population ... [W]e may even have to begin penalizing people by tax measures to induce them to do no more than have two children."

1971: A Zero Population Growth Official's Report from the Laboratories

In 1971, Edgar R. Chasteen, then a national board member of Zero Population Growth, Inc., and also a board member of the Planned Parenthood Association of Greater Kansas City, wrote The Case for Compulsory Birth Control. While, in 1971, it may have seemed to be the ramblings of a crank, today Chasteen's prescriptions and ideas, when linked to the patient behind-the-scenes research and development on the newer long-term contraceptive items, prove to be informed prophecy come true. After all, Chasteen, as shall be proven here, and as the Irish say, "knew his onions". Also, Chasteen's words should make the dime drop in the direction of realizing that orchestration precedes social engineering as surely does, as Father William Smith has often said, verbal engineering.

Considering the advent of "the vaccination against pregnancy" we can now look upon Chasteen's following idea with new eyes. Chasteen deftly folds universal vaccination against pregnancy into a "public health" mandate similar to that of the universal vaccination of children against smallpox:

"Assuming that we could soon have a vaccine to immunize against fertility, it would then be possible to inoculate all children. Unlike the smallpox vaccine which furnishes lifelong protection, however, the anti-fertility vaccine will have to be reversible. Following marriage, fertility could be temporarily restored by another shot. After the permitted number of births, permanent immunity to fertility (sterilization) could be re-established."

The above front pages from two major news magazines brings to the fore the question "what is the news media's true purpose?" While a murder trial aimed at bringing the culprit to justice is of certain importance (even though unreported murder trials of non-celebrities daily take place by the hundreds all across the country), the day-in, day-out "bread & circus" media hype surrounding this event only serve to distract from what is vital. Meanwhile, news having a massive impact on people's family lives, such as the evil agenda and consequences of the population control elite, go unreported and therefore unchallenged. The media would do a much greater service stimulating people on a mass scale to inquire "how do we oppose the population planners?" rather than "is O.J. guilty?"

Home of the Brave, Land of the Free — Or a National Eugenics Experiment?

As Jaffe's earlier-cited 1969 memorandum shows, changing the ideal family size has worked well in the U.S. No one in America would guess that they were actually obeying a command regarding the "permitted number of births" as devised through close demographic bean counting by population controllers for the American populace.

Where once large families were rife, today they are considered an aberration of the norm. Also, economic pressures, high consciousness about the supposed relationship between unwanted children and child abuse and lack of economic development of larger families in the U.S. have and will continue to play an enormous and planned part in pushing the new long-term "contraceptives" as a socially accepted good.

The operation on culture versus outright coercion has been a major success for the eugenicists in the U.S. program. And since mostly all Americans have absolutely no inkling of there even being a eugenics establishment, they have no reason at all to sense that they are being railroaded toward a totally controlled future in the area of their own reproductive freedom.

Public Degradation: the One Thing Eugenically Needful

It is worthy to note here from another report, from First magazine, titled "Genes 'R' Us", that even the idea of building in temporary infertility to human embryos created through in vitro fertilization can now be articulated in public, in a supermarket, mass circulation magazine, as an idea whose time may have come rather than be seen as a bizarre, eugenical means of social control. The U.S. public has been deemed, as such reports show, "ready" for such suggestions that have scientific and technological expertise at their service. Eugenicists have articulated something which British cell biologist, Ann McLaren, writing in the book, Embryo Research: Yes Or No?, calls "the sociology of morality". All this fancy phrase means is that once the public is degraded enough by practicing a preliminary form of eugenics, it is ready to announce the next and deeper form.

Demonstrating that, arch insider Chasteen, in 1970, knew that the research and development then doggedly underway and now turning up as products ready or near ready for market, would not have been ready at that point to be disclosed to the U.S. public. No, it had to be degraded by nearly 30 years of surgical abortion to be able to "appreciate" the "virtues" of long-term contraception as a noble substitute for the "evil" of abortion.

Not naming the Rockefellers as the engine powering eugenics has only ensured that they have no opposition.

The Future as a Contraceptive "Paradise"

In line with this thought is Chasteen's dedication of an entire section of one chapter to "Future Contraceptive Developments". In turn, these are related to his "case for compulsory birth control", even if such coercion is costumed in alleged vol-untarism, which is befitting to the "democratic" nature of the United States, one of the most eugenically controlled countries in history:

"If a policy of compulsory birth control such as I envision is to become a humane reality, it will necessarily be based on a contraceptive that is safer and more effective than any now in use. Fortunately, these new contraceptives are now under study and a number are being tested on experimental animals. Scientists have found several substances which stop the production of sperm when injected into men."

This may have been the recipe for the Schering America "pill" given experimentally to U.S. pilots, mentioned earlier in this article, and relating to hormone experiments at Auschwitz whose protocols were then filtered to Rock and Pincus through Schering America.

Chasteen goes on, obviously alluding to such substances as RU-486, also now in experimental trials run by the Population Council. Obviously, RU-486 and related "morning after pills" were, according to Chasteen, already formulated and being tested to some extent in 1970 or before:

"All oral contraceptives now in use are designed to be taken before coitus and the possibility of conception. Experimentally, however, an oral contraceptive, popularly called 'the morning after pill,' has been shown to prevent pregnancy. To be taken after intercourse, rather than before, this contraceptive is designed to abort a conception which has already occurred. The woman who takes the pill, of course, never knows if she was actually pregnant. All she knows is that she was exposed to the risk of pregnancy, and the contraceptive removes the risk after rather than before sexual contact."

And then, possibly alluding to Quinacrine, the old, discredited anti-malarial drug now used in pellet form as a non-surgical sterilizer, Chasteen discloses that:

"A new chemical contraceptive which hopefully will provide protection for a year or more ... is being tested. It is a hormone contained in a slow-release capsule that is inserted into the womb. The hormone alters the womb lining so that a fertilized egg won't be produced. This contraceptive has been tested successfully but it has not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration as yet."

Why Eugenics Needs a "Sexual Philosophy"

Sounding the tocsin for the danger of the "population explosion", on the book jacket of Chasteen's volume, the propaganda formula is presented: "We must attack the cancer of ... population explosion. It is not a passing fad. Awareness is growing that we must do something or die." And in one of his last sections, Chasteen rather masterfully takes on the subject of working toward a "sexual philosophy". This would entail the final split between the Catholic doctrine of sexuality in service of procreation within the marriage bond.

Instead, Chasteen's "sexual philosophy", which he puffs as "rich" and "meaningful", would eventually present a view of sex as that human faculty which must dutifully serve the new catechesis teaching human beings that strict control of their fertility is the greatest gift they can give to an endangered and overpopulated planet.

Thus, the "spiritual", social and personal reformation of the sexual faculty will merge with a brief for "voluntary" birth control and go gently into the dark night of Gaia, the environmental population controller's model for global eugenic control. As per Chasteen's vision:

"Contraception makes it possible to view sex as voluntary, interpersonal behavior rather than a necessary act of survival. Sex becomes a special method of communication between male and female. Sex thus loses its exclusively biological meaning and becomes more social. Like all social relationships, sex can be made constructive or destructive, depending on the attitude and behavior of those involved. Sex can become a dialogue between two people in which each comes to understand and appreciate the other. It can be an expression of the mutual dependence so fundamental to human existence. Sex can be an enriching and compassionate human encounter or simply another opportunity for exploitation, satisfying a biological urge but destroying humanity socially and spiritually. It's up to us."

Today, the Rockefeller Foundation and its Institute for Medicine shall certainly do their best to provide, through ever more propaganda and carefully fixed social and economic prompts, the "attitudes and behavior" that will lead humanity to become disinterested in its own survival in favor of adopting a purely anti-God driven sexual philosophy surrounding the breakdown in human reproduction as a procreative act. To obscure this atheistic element, the Rockefeller forces are even willing to surround their goal of long-term contraceptive with a pseudo-pro-life veil. The better to eat you, my dear! But then, the population must cling to their illusions that they are moral, especially when they are about to descend even further into the abyss.

The Second Contraceptive Revolution Rises out of the Ashes of Surgical Abortion

"The Best Intentions" promises that since half of the 60% of "unintended pregnancies" end in the newly admitted tragedy of abortion, 800,000 abortions could be avoided each

It was the introduction of privately practiced birth control in both countries which, after the First World War, led to the same populations, especially that of Germany, becoming attuned to national schemes of eugenics as social policy.

year if only those guilty of unintended pregnancies would be installed with long-term contraception. The Foundation is playing the "abortion card", in order to pump in its real and much longer-term goal of using long-term "contraception" as a more efficient population control tool. For, as Chasteen points out in the above-cited book, abortion is not a very efficient means of population control since women who abort one or more children can also go on to bear more than the desired number of living children.

Eugenics as a universal social plan cannot allow even its own interim and back-up tool of abortion to supplant the tightfisted control mechanism ingrained in long-term contraception. And RU-486, although certainly an abortifacient, is grouped by the eugenicists, among the "long-term contraceptives" and has no relationship in their minds to abortion at all. In fact, RU-486 is no more guilty of abortion than the dozens of other abortifacient contraceptives already with us.

Contraception's Child is Full Blown Eugenics: the Historical Record Speaks

Finally, we come to consult history on the powerful role of contraception in powering the slide into full-blown eugenics as a statist policy. Contraception turns out to have been the biggest foundational element in the rise of the German eugenic state. There is something about folling God's will that leads man right into a brief for exterminating himself and millions of others. Several very important books and articles locate and explain this relationship. Among them are the article, "The Sonderweg of German Eugenics, Nationalism and Internationalism", by Paul Weindling in The British Journal of the History of Science, September, 1989, and the book, Demography and Degeneration: Eugenics and the Declining Birthrate in Twentieth Century Britain, by Richard A. Soloway. Both present compelling and copious evidence that it was the introduction of privately practiced birth control in both countries which, after the First World War, led to the same populations, especially that of Germany, becoming attuned to national schemes of eugenics as social policy.

People had undergone such a depressing episode during the First World War that it seemed to have caused a veritable collapse in their hope of any future as well as having tragically undercut their religious faith and adherence to doctrine. Across the board, contraception was abhorred by all religious faiths. (See sidebar). These

It Was Not Always So ...

We would all do well to pause and consider the implications of a 1936 editorial that appeared in The Washington Post. It depicts an America not yet in the clutches of the Rockefeller Foundation's masterminding of the human race. The Committee referred to in the following refers to Committee on Marriage and the Home of the Federal Council of Churches, later to be called the National Council of Churches. This committee and the Federal Council had been created through Rockefeller, Jr.'s machinations to cull "religious" support for Sanger's birth control crusade. The Federal Council of Churches was the first note to be sounded in the overall phony ecumenical movement, so much in play at this moment in time and the central force in the satanic syncretism guided by the Rockefeller forces through the United Nations and their Modernist's ecumenical movement's early adjunct that's still going strong, The Temple of Understanding. The quote below was dredged up by Robert Marshall and Charles Donovan for their magnificent book, Blessed Are the Barren, The Social Policy of Planned Parenthood:

It is impossible to reconcile the doctrine of the divine institution of marriage with any modernistic plan for the mechanical regulation of birth. The Church must either reject the plain teachings of the Bible or reject schemes for the "scientific" production of souls ... The committee's report ... would sound the death knell of marriage as a holy institution ... [and] would encourage indiscriminate immorality. The suggestion that the use of legalized contraceptives would be "careful and restrained" [by married couples only] is preposterous.

The frontispiece quote to the same volume becomes chilling when held up to the present realities surrounding contraception. It is from The Way of the Cross, Luke 23:27-31, the New American Bible:

A large crowd of people followed Jesus, including many women who mourned and lamented him. Jesus turned to them and said, "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for Me, weep instead for yourselves and your children, for indeed, the days are coming when people will say, 'Blessed are the barren, the wombs that never bore and the breasts that never nursed.' At that time, people will say to the mountains, 'Fall upon us!' and to the hills, 'Cover us!' for if these things are done when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry?"

crises powered the drift into birth control.

Also, in the case of Germany, the lack of new births led Germany to call itself, Deutschland ohne Jungen, or "Germany without Young People". Eventually this led to the eugenics aimed at asozial, or "outsiders" such as Jews and Gypsies, who procreated freely. The economic constraints and reparations imposed on Germany by the Versailles Treaty succored, even before the rise of Hitler, the German euthanasia program that "inspired" Germans to save the financial burden on the state of thousands of handicapped children, old people, mental patients and retarded persons. Yet, the cause was a spiritual collapse that led to birth control that led then onward to fullblown eugenics and a death agenda accepted blithely by most as a "good".

This historical revelation demonstrates the importance of the Jaffe-Berelson memo all over again. If external conditions can be architected or arise to support free-floating anxiety, economically instable and depression about the future, the lunge into the waiting abyss, arranged by the population controllers-cum-social engineers, will be very well ensured. So much more so in a country such as ours where all types of birth control, plus explosive violence and promiscuity are ingrained and rising. In Germany and England, the eugenicists, who all belonged to the revolutionary international eugenics consortium funded in the main by the Rockefeller powers, eagerly and readily filled the social and spiritual void that their own patrons had helped to construct.

Contraception: Anointer of Eugenic High Priests

In Germany, the eugenic high priests replaced the pastors of authentic religion. They formed, at the behest of the state, the Eugenics High Court of Appeal, which legislated who could and who could not reproduce and who should be sterilized. Some Americans, such as eugenicist Harry Laughlin, partici-
