

Henry J. Foster and the Politics of Death

In this article, Suzanne M. Rini not only focuses on Surgeon-General nominee, Dr. Henry J. Foster, but also the eugenic money and machinery that brought him into prominence. She discusses the Rockefellers' deliberate perversion of higher education, Foster's being filtered through these universities to government posts in order to do hard eugenic duty, Foster's past encouragement of torturous embryo experimentation, his involvement with fetoscopy and the horrid Tuskegee experiments. This article shows that Dr. Henry Foster is the product of powerful patrons. He does not come to us as a man with his own ideas, but as made and paid propagandist and technician for the establishment of eugenics as the "national religion".

by Suzanne M. Rini

When Bill Clinton was elected President, he quickly named Dr. Jockeyln Elders as Surgeon General. At the time, she was head of the Arkansas State Department of Health. Once appointed, but before she actually came to Washington to take up the caduceus and don the uniform of Surgeon General, she made a widely reported statement that was part confrontation, part death lobby celebration: "Pro-lifers are going to have to end their love affair with the fetus."

Whether this came exclusively from the mind of Elders is an interesting question, for the entire Clinton Presidency has tainly not limited to, the Surgeon General.

Now the Surgeon General's caduceus is due to be passed to Dr. Henry J. Foster, Jr. Rumor has it that Planned Parenthood not only sent in his name as the preferred choice, but also has veto power over nominees.

I would rather say that Foster's eugenic police blotter, thoroughly exposed by pro-life genius, journalist and author, Randy Engel, bespeaks the presence and power of the Eugenics Establishment, Planned Parenthood being only the most well known of its surrogates and creatures.

Engel, in a recent article of the investigative themes she's treated over the last 25 years, then Dr. Henry Foster would be that ideal. Because she never "kept it simple," the pro-life code word for deleting the Rockefeller axis connections to the entire anti-life agenda, what Engel was really doing all of those years was defining and delineating the New World Order's mind and lack of soul before anyone had ever used that imprecise term.

Engel Exposes Eugenic Establishment

Engel took apart the elements in the Order as they turned up relative to eugenics, the missing link in much writing on the Establishment's stranglehold on the globe. She exposed the March of Dimes as a key part of the Eugenics Establishment.

Within that, and showing her rare courage, she exposed now Bishop James McHugh — long time saboteur of the pro-life cause from his long-time position at the United States Catholic Conference (USCC's) Pro-Life Secretariat — as being a collaborator of the March of Dimes, and of SIECUS, the major shaper and purveyor of sex education. McHugh has sat on both organizations boards to which he gave dutiful service by spreading the neutralizing propaganda about both.

As well, she (Engel) threw full light on the insidious operations of USAID as the main tool of the Eugenics Establishment's "exportation" of contraception, forced and so-called "voluntary" sterilization and abortion — all threads in the bloody fabric of population control, the idée fixe, since the early part of this century of the Rockefeller axis.

Indeed, then, the appointment of Henry Foster, Jr. to the post of Surgeon General is an opportunity to publicly regale Randy Engel's unparalleled work as well as to bring to light the many details of Foster's record.

In the aggregate, Foster's eugenic rap sheet demonstrates, beyond any shadow of a doubt, what in toto his Eugenic masters created, and how they have bought up him and hundreds (or really thousands) more like him, a phalanx of workaday Fausts.

Foster's nomination proves that the Eugenics Establishment is externalizing its agenda because that agenda is quickly becoming what it was always meant to be: the complete Around 1978, Foster was in favor of in vitro fertilization, creation of and experimentation upon human embryos as being proper for government funding.

replacement for Hippocratic Oath and medicine based on Catholic moral and ethical norms with the final public encampment of Eugenics as the national religion

There is a gruesome logic for Foster as the new Surgeon General. He could be the companion piece to the Republican push to end welfare, a long-term goal of abortion population demographics among the Rockefeller crowd. If Foster is, as he is touted, "an expert on teenage pregnancy," then his record shows that he would be just the man to have in place — because he has the proven stomach — to foist long-term sterilization devices such as Norplant, or the new birth control and abortifacient vaccines on the poor.

Isn't the man who helped devise a do-it-yourself abortion kit, and himself performed a high number of abortions, who was fully apprised of the Tuskegee syphilis experiments on poor black men — and much more — just exactly the man for this season?

After all, full-blown, Huxleyian eugenics is now coming to dark fruition in this country as a second stage Nazi social experiment, architected by the same powers that arranged the first stage in Germany? So, this article has a double motive: to praise Randy Engel and to further expose the maniacal minds behind the career of Dr. Henry Foster, Jr. Following is Engel's list of Foster's "credits." For each of Engel's exposures of Foster, more material is provided from both her work and this writer's research:

The Subversion of Higher Learning

been a ruthless progression of "in your face" eugenics policies hatched from those unelected regions far above the Presidency.

In late 1994, Elders was asked to resign her office for making a remark that youngsters in school should be taught masturbation. Yet, in the time she did serve as Surgeon General, she experienced absolutely no censure from the Clinton Administration for her outrageous pro-abortion stand.

If Clinton really does believe that "abortion should be rare and legal," then obviously there is a fifth column somewhere in the shadows who is sending him names for key appointees such as, but certainly The Remnant also went beyond the usual pro-life fixation with Planned Parenthood (as though it is the whole story and the lone death dealing entity). She deftly and with Engelian powers of connection, termed Foster a "technician of the New Order."

In fact, it is perfectly logical that it was exactly Randy Engel who was able to go into her extensive archive and find the Mr. Hyde of this Dr. Jekyll. It was also just her speed to send out a universal press release that cut no corners and cared not for any compromise with the whole lurid truth.

In fact, as Engel told me tonight on the phone, if she'd ever cared to create a character representing all cal College was one of twenty-five medical colleges or universities targeted by J. D. Rockefeller, Jr. and his strong-man advisor, Frederick Gates, for munificence, beginning in 1914.

Among these medical colleges were those at Vanderbilt, the Rockefeller funded and founded University of Chicago, Cornell, Tulane, University of Rochester, the already by then and still premier Darwinist outpost, Johns Hopkins University, Yale, and the lone black medical school, Meharry Medical College. The house biographers recite that the millions of dollars invested in these by "Junior's" General Education Board was to "build . . . up a few select schools to the highest caliber."

At the time, others in the medical and scientific communities saw it a little differently. Only three years after the grants were made, the editor of Science, James M. Cattell, called the investment an instrument of control:

"The Carnegie and Rockefeller Foundations have undertaken to dictate educational affairs all over the country and all the way from primary school to the university. The fact that their large resources enable them to employ able men is a dangerous aspect of the situation. So many institutions are now subsidized by one or both of these foundations, that many educational leaders are not free to express their real opinion or are not in a position to form unprejudiced opinions."

In the same period, the Rockefeller Foundation made big financial drops in the area of other educational efforts to destroy classical or normal school education and supplant it with what is best termed "experimental" education as based on the experiential psychological techniques of the German, Wilhelm Wundt, of the University of Leipzig.

To this end, the Rockefellers enlisted John Dewey, who had studied this new method under G. Stanley Hall, who in turn had been placed, after his Leipzig indoctrination, at Johns Hopkins. Dewey was installed at the Rockefeller University of Chicago, along with J.B. Watson, a relative nobody, who founded the manipulative pseudo-science of behaviorism.

"Snow is Black"

Author Lance J. Klass, in The Leipzig Connection, reports that "Dewey's intention . . . was to join psychology to education." Later, Bertrand Russell, a dyed-in-the wool exponent of Dewey, wrote, in his The Impact of Science Upon Society:

"The social psychologist of the future will have a number of classes of school children on whom they will try different methods of producing an unshakable conviction that snow is black . . . When the technique has been perfected, every government that has been in charge of education, for more than one generation, will be able to control its subjects securely without the need of armies or policemen".

The essence of this perversion of education was to bring children — and university and medical students — into the realm of the Rockefeller preference for an "evolutionary" view of people, namely, that they are merely animals who, as Klass writes, "can be understood by analyzing what they experience."

Rockefeller, Jr.'s General Education Board announced that its purpose was "the promotion of education within the United States without distinction of race, sex or creed." Beneath this self-advertisement lurked the deeper agenda, expressed by Rockefeller's right hand man, Gates, on the matter of the grants made to rural southern schools and within that, to black ones:

"In our dreams, we have limitless resources and the people yield themselves with perfect docility to our molding hands."

"The present education conventions fade from their minds, and unhampered by tradition, we work our own good will upon a grateful and responsive rural folk. We shall not try to make these people or any of their children into philosophers or men of learning, or men of science. We have not to raise up from among them authors, editors, poets or men of letters . . . The task we set before ourselves is very simple as well as a very beautiful one, to train these people as we find them to a perfectly ideal life just where they are".

'NOW can we give him penicillin?'

In other words, as usual, the Rockefeller crowd would play the hand of Darwinian natural selection and ensure the "whitebread" exclusivity of the professions.

An interesting note on the General Education Board's early investment in Dr. Foster's Meharry Medical College was reported by the American Life League's news release on Foster's career. It seems that Dr. Foster's tenure at Meharry resulted in that college losing its accreditation. Perhaps this was the end point of the plan for Meharry.

While Yale, Cornell, Vanderbilt and Johns Hopkins have first rate medical schools, the black medical college has collapsed under the weight of the Rockefeller "technician," Dr. Foster. This is redolent of Margaret Sanger's Negro Project for which she hired black ministers to filter her sterilization and birth control programs to blacks while appearing to help them.

Of course, as revealed by the above cited Rockefeller biography, "Junior" also began to formally fund Sanger in 1924. But one of his aides was already acting as her legal counsel some years before.

An Apostle of Modernism

Intrinsic to the Rockefeller early investment in the destruction of normal school education was short and long-term goals of transforming the school into a mainstream pipeline for eugenics as the new catechesis that Rockefeller Jr. had announced at a Baptist dinner in 1919.

Again from the Rockefeller house biography, it is revealed that in an after dinner speech, "Junior" announced that he had become an "apostle of modernism."

Around the same time, his right hand man, Gates, also a Baptist by day, announced that "Christ had neither founded nor intended to found the Baptist church, nor any church . . . and that the whole Baptist fabric was built up on texts which had no authority, and on ecclesiastical conceptions wholly foreign to the mind of Christ."

And in the same period, the newly assembled Rockefeller Foundation, created to sequester huge blocks of their fortunes from the tax-man, began to be involved in both the German monopoly, IG Farben and to finance the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute, the locus for their grants to various Nazi anthropologists, psychiatrists, biologists and geneticists.

Returning to the U.S. university investment, the same ditching of confessionality that was announced by Junior and Gates, began to devolve in that community and had indeed been begun even earlier than 1914.

Father James Burtchael, in a First Things article titled, "The Decline and Fall of the Christian College," treats the case of one of the eventual Rockefeller General Education Board's targets, Vanderbilt University, originally funded in the late 19th century by robber baron, Cornelius Vanderbilt. His investment in Vanderbilt sounded the first dissonant note in a long progression of marginalizations of the founding Methodist basis of the university. Methodist bishops tried to fight this encroachment, one of them railing, "Give me the evangelist and the revivalist rather than the erudite brother who goes into the pulpit to interpret modern science instead of preaching repentance and faith, or going so deep into geology as to show that Adam was not the first man and that the Deluge was a little local affair . . . It is my opinion that every dollar invested in a theological school will be a danger to Methodism."

Here again, even before Rockefeller came, the plan by the robber baron set was to drive out Christianity, replace it with evolution and then introduce the artificial and man-made form of evolution's "natural selection," i.e., eugenics.

Vanderbilt's confessionality was also eroded by monies from Andrew Carnegie, who set aside an incredible sum of $10 million, to be provided for faculty pensions, but only for nonsectarian universities.

"During the plague, it was not those doctors who suffocated their patients between two mattresses who were the ones to find the cure."

Eventually, Vanderbilt's insider spy, one Mr. Kirkland, succeeded in garnering forty million dollars from the combined philanthropies of Vanderbilt, Carnegie and Rockefeller toward secularizing the university. Needless to say, the plan was successful.

The same pattern was obtained at the other targeted universities.

The Duty of Eugenics Promotion

Today, men like Foster from the Meharry, are regularly filtered, through their universities, to government posts and committees to do hard eugenic duty. For instance, the Human Embryo Research Panel's members who, in 1994 and 1995, cavalierly

legitimized government funding of that evil, included Dr. Steven Muller of Johns Hopkins, and Nan-nerl Keohane, current chancellor of Vanderbilt, as well as numerous other plants from various other entities tied to the Eugenics Establishment. Keohane and Muller are also members of the Council on Foreign Relations, with Keohane also on the Trilateral Commission, both of which are Rockefeller constructs that in essence run this country and its foreign policy. And the NIH Director, Dr. Harold Varmus, who mounted the totally stacked Panel, is himself a scientist whose career has been carried out at Rockefeller installations.

Thus, the underlying and hard to miss purpose of the long-term investment has paid off in that such characters can be counted upon to legitimize deeper and wider eugenics programs in the United States.

Foster: The Murderous Steamroller

This brings us then to Randy Engel's next item regarding Dr. Foster, his appointment to just such a government steam rolling operation, the 1978-80 Department of Health Education and Welfare's Ethical Advisory Board (EAB) that was raised to discuss whether or not the federal government at that point should fund human embryo research. It was there that Engel really found out Foster.

At that time, Foster threw in for in vitro fertilization creation of and experimentation upon human embryos as being proper for government funding. The same EAB, as reported by Engel and which this writer can substantiate, also discussed the granting of a waiver to a Drew University researcher who wanted to do experiments on babies to be aborted to test the prenatal diagnostic technique of fetoscopy.

Fetoscopy entails drawing blood from the skull of a baby to be aborted. The blood is then tested to find if the child in the womb is afflicted with sickle cell anemia, thalassemia or hemophilia. Foster weighed in for granting the waiver to allow the practitioner to further develop the protocols for this procedure aimed at babies in the womb.

The idea of this type of fetal experimentation is that since the abortion is scheduled, no harm is done to the unborn baby, who cannot really be "harmed" since it's going to be killed anyway.

The March of Dimes

Engel's next discovery about Henry Foster coincides with her expertise on and exposure of the March of Dimes. She remembered Foster as a National Advisory Board member of the March of Dimes.

This writer can substantiate Mrs. Engel's own maiden research on and exposure of the March of international research foundation that funded the Nobel Prize winning geneticist, Dr. Jerome Lejeune.

Lejeune, who found the cause of Down's Syndrome, was dedicated not to killing his patients but to finding a cure. The Michael Fund was named by Engel after Michael Pollcastro, the son of friends of hers, who was born with Down's. Before his death on Easter Sunday of 1994, Lejeune had already found that high doses of folic acid to women at risk for bearing a child with Down's could counter the retardation that accompanies the Dimes in the overall area of development of amniocentesis, fetoscopy and chorion villi sampling, all prenatal diagnostic tests, or "search and destroy missions" aimed at eugenic abortion of handicapped babies.

All of the development of these tests were done on what Engel calls TBA's or to-be-aborted babies. In her brave, unparalleled booklet, A March of Dimes Primer, Eugenic Killing from A to Z, Mrs. Engel's "F is for Fetal Experimentation" describes:

"Beginning in 1968 and continuing throughout the late 1980s the March of Dimes (MOD) has funded and promoted . . . prenatal diagnosis . . . techniques [on] . . . to-be aborted women . . . In fact, it has been the financial backing of private foundations like the MOD that permitted fetoscopic . . . researchers such as MOD grantees . . . to bypass the federal moratorium on live, non-therapeutic fetal experimentation. Not only did Randy Engel expose the March of Dimes, (MOD) she also, to fight their reductionist, eugenic and Darwinian perspective on human life, founded the Michael Fund. This is the disease. This writer knows from interviewing the eugenics pushers with regard to Lejeune, that they despised him. Like Engel, Lejeune was a tireless upholder of life for all, and a Catholic model of the right-minded physician and scientist. Or, as he said, "During the plague, it was not those doctors who suffocated their patients between two mattresses who were the ones to find the cure."

Racially Aimed Eugenic Abortion

With regard again to fetoscopy, there is a racial side to fetoscopy that may, along with Foster's involvement in the Tuskegee syphilis experiments, persuade the black Baptist Convention to withdraw their support of the Foster nomination. Fetoscopy is employed to diagnose sickle cell anemia, a debilitating blood disease most common to blacks.

As I reported in Beyond Abortion, A Chronicle of Fetal Experimentation, once fetoscopy was "perfected" in the 1970's, DHEW (now called the Department of Health and Human Services), then with Casper Weinberger in charge, floated a screening program aimed at carriers of sickle cell anemia. But the National Welfare Rights Organization sued Weinberger because the program smacked of racially aimed eugenic abortion.

Thus, we see that in his avidity for fetoscopy (and amniocentesis), Dr. Foster was an early forerunner of the fairly new phenomenon termed "black on black crime."

Foster was truly always ahead of his time in this respect, although shielded from charges of racism because he is black and because he is protected by the transvaluation of values put into place by his eugenics patrons. Aborting a handicapped baby is now defined as "compassion" just as permitting such a baby to be born is deemed "cruel." Thus, in the transvaluation of values, the former Cannibals become the "Christians."

Foster's "Do-it-yourself" Abortion Kit

One of Engel's most comprehensive investigative reports was on the do-it-yourself version of the prostaglandins abortifacient, Prostin F2 Alpha. This drug is injected into an aborting woman but only causes contractions, not the destruction of the baby, who is in a certain significant percentage of cases, born with some vital signs.

Here again, Mrs. Engel remembered Henry Foster as having carried out experimental trials on Prostin F2 Alpha based do it yourself abortion kit for Upjohn Pharmaceuticals. And through this fact and connection, we see the was developed in the mid-1970's and manufactured by Upjohn. During the same time period, Engel assembled one of the most masterful dossiers on Nelson Rockefeller, floated then as Gerald Ford's choice for Vice President after Nixon was forced to resign.

In 1972 Rockefeller, through the totally stacked and fixed Froessel Commission, had managed, without any public or legislative consensus, to decriminalize abortion in New York state where at that time he was the Governor.

When chosen for the Vice Presidency, the Congress' Ways and Means Committee mounted hearings on his extensive financial interests as well as those of his family and their pervasive power in all spheres. Engel sent Attorney Charles Rice to deliver a testimony against Rockefeller and based on her dossier.

One of the points made by Rice was that records of "the Schedule of Transactions in Marketable Securities (Jan. 1 1973 to Dec. 31, 1973) showed Rockefeller stocks held in Upjohn Company, manufacturers of Prostin F2 Alpha and Depo Provera." Thus, in her recent Remnant article on Foster, Engel analyzes that Dr. Foster's participation in Prostin F2 Alpha trials denotes that "by the early 1980s Meharry had become one of Upjohn Pharmaceutical Company's killing centers." The test sample, as revealed by what Randy Engel exposed over and over again regarding the Eugenics Establishment's use of the government agency, USAID, to push forced and "voluntary" sterilization in the Third World.

U.S. A.I.D.'s Mania for Mutilation

Some years ago, when I didn't really know Randy Engel as well as I do now, I took up one of her many publications to read just before going to bed. It was titled, "Taxpayers Guide to Federal Anti-Life Programs — Spring 1977." Inside is Engel's testimony before the Committee on International Relations, United States House of Representatives.

First Engel relates that "U.S. A.I.D. dollars were and had been used over ten prior years to finance and promote India's popu-program.

✓ The worst blood bath however took place in Uttar Pradesh where on October 18, the District Magistrate, angered by the low turnout of volunteers for the sterilization program ordered the occupants from two densely populated mohalas into the sterilization tent area. There was a mini uprising and before the day was over more than forty persons were dead.

Sterilization is one of the main categories of population control. In essence, it is selective genocide.

A 1993 edition of The Baobab Press, an information and analysis population control bulletin reported the newest method of sterilization, the chemical pellet, Quinacrine.

Trials of this sterilizing drug on humans are "known to cause a variety of side effects, including . . . 'toxic psychosis,' a form of chemical insanity." The same agents of death as reported by Engel in 1977 — USAID, the World Bank, etc., were responsible for this current, 1990's program abroad.

Here again, the eugenics loop, so long ago begun to be built up into a veritable death machine, is at play. The above cited "Baobab" report cites that Johns Hopkins University, "under contract to USAID, discloses that 123 million women in developing

And the same report refers to one of Randy Engel's all time targets, Dr. Reimert Ravenholt, former 1970's noxious head of USAID's population office in the 1970's.

Then, Ravenholt "publicly hinted that the Agency (USAID) intended to sterilize one-quarter of all women in the developing world in order to protect a 'strong US commercial presence' overseas." And as for Johns Hopkins linkage to the death peddlers (as Father Paul Marx called them), Engel early and often treated their extensive role in the population control overall agenda and specific programs, too numerous to treat here.

This, then, provides a more realistic context for the Tuskegee syphilis experiments and sterilizations glowing out from Dr. Foster's curriculum mortae.

Have You Heard of Tuskegee?

The Tuskegee experiment was run by the U.S. Public Health Service, a steady and now historical in-government colony of the Rockefeller axis. Between 1932 and 1972, the project injected 400 black Alabama sharecroppers with syphilis. The object seems obvious and therefore a form of especially gratuitous violence: to ascertain the effects of untreated syphilis.

The book, Bad Blood, the Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment — a tragedy of race and medicine by James H. Jones emerged from that debacle. Because telling details of who paid some of the macabre bills of the project are less known than the overall story.

Many subjects of the Tuskegee experiment died from the injection of live syphilis. But that wasn't the end of it. The experimenters wanted to perform autopsies on their bodies so as to confirm the effects wrought by the untreated syphilis.

A Public Health Service nurse would go to the families of the dead man and inform them of his demise. But her real purpose was to obtain their consent for the autopsy.

This was done by offering them a "burial stipend." And the burial

Milbank Memorial Fund "renewed the grant for every year for nearly four decades, increasing the annual appropriations as necessary to keep up with rising costs."

The cynicism and exploitation of the poor, black men parallels the uncaring, murderous instincts at large in Engel's recounting of USAID's sterilizations in India and other Third World countries. According to above-cited author Jones, not all the men died in the hospital. Becoming ill after the injections, many stayed at home.

Since the men could no longer work and support their families, they often asked for some financial help while they were still living. But a Public Health Service report on the men's "balking," explained that when asked for money for living expenses, "the . . . nurse . . . would appeal to him from an unselfish

Dr. Henry Foster was present at a 1969 meeting in which a small group of local doctors were informed of the infamous 'Tuskegee Experiment' in which black men were denied treatment for syphilis in order to study their progress . . . and . . . that he did not express any moral qualms."

Engel, was culled from the "largely inner-city black population" near Meharry.

Finally, Dr. Foster, who at one time was quoted as "abhorring abortion" but has now been revealed to have carried out hundreds of abortions, was found — this time by syndicated columnist, Charles Krauthammer, to have sterilized four mentally retarded women in the 1970's. As well, American Life League President, Judie Brown, in the March 10, 1995 edition of Communique, quoted a Dallas Morning News report saying:

"The former president of the Macon County, Alabama medical society said that he would be prepared to testify that Dr. Henry Foster was present at a 1969 meeting in which a small group of local doctors were informed of the infamous 'Tuskegee Experiment' in which black men were denied treatment for syphilis in order to study their progress . . . and . . . that he did not express any moral qualms."

The Tuskegee Experiments are indeed a paradigm of U.S. eugenics excess and real horror. And we shall soon treat the particulars of how that record of shame traces yet again to the Eugenics Establishment. But no American should remain ignorant any longer of lation control program . . . both directly and indirectly through the United Nations Fund for Population, the World Health Organization, the World Bank and the International Planned Parenthood Federation and Population Council."

All of these are traceable to the Rockefeller Foundation's (RF) global swath of interests and power, each one simply a surrogate for the other and all of them together, for the RF.

Relating that "the Indian project is . . . the Prototype of AID's ultimate population objectives in the developing nations," Engel graphically highlighted this fact with tragic and frightening examples, all of which prevented this writer from sleeping that night and responsible for many a subsequent nightmare. Three of these follow:

✓ In Pratapgarb District, two villagers trapped for sterilization and kept in custody, ran away. One of them was drowned in a nearby river in his escape attempt.

✓ In Allahbad, a police constable was forced to get himself sterilized at a time when his only son, age five, was dying of typhoid. Upon the child's death the anguished father took the body of his son to the Police Station, resulting in an immediate police strike in protest of the sterilization

Darwinism, the necessary foundation of all eugenics experiments and programs.

Returning to the burial stipends provided by the Milbank Memorial Fund. The genesis of the Milbank Memorial Fund leads to revelations about class and the pecking order within class. It also speaks to the pattern of a certain kind of "tithing" among this class that echoes James Billington's revelation in The Fire in Men's Eyes that Masons require that a percentage of fellow Mason's money go toward "philanthropy." So that beneath "philanthropy" lies the lodge, the oldest mafia in the world.

Population Control Disguised as Public Health

According to The Rockefeller Century, Albert Milbank was one of "Junior's" classmates at the Cutler School, whose law firm represented his family in later years. The Milbanks were among those in the "professional classes that began to serve... the sons of the new industrial elite."

Eventually, the Milbank Memorial Fund was "persuaded to help population studies in the academic world." But originally, the Fund was set up to "promote public health," established in 1928 and therefore in fine form to aid and abet the Public Health Service in 1932 with the Tuskegee experiments.

The Milbanks, like other lesser yet heavily monied powers obviously knew how to come when called by "Junior." (That's the pecking order distance between law and oil. Oil is bigger and it's even dirtier.)

Around the same time, that is shortly after the Ludlow miners struck his Colorado Mining and Fuel and Junior garnered really horrendous public outrage because his "managers" called in the state militia and a fire ensued in which miners' wives and children were killed.

Out of this experience in which he was exposed as especially ruthless, Junior's call of conscience resulted in his becoming passionately interested in the alleged "population problem." As he did so often, he turned to the Scripps newspaper scion, who quickly succumbed to the offer he probably didn't dare refuse. Thus was born the Scripps Foundation for Population Research.

Frederick Osborn, one of the lights of the racist Pioneer Fund and J.D.R. III's pick later, in 1952 to head up his version of Murder, Inc., the Population Council, went with his friend Alfred Milbank over to their alma mater, Princeton. In a trice, in 1936, an office of population research appeared at Princeton backed by a grant of $12,000, a huge sum when in that Depression year most Americans didn't even have the one or two pennies to buy a pound of baloney.

Thus, it is best to see the Tuskegee experiment as a stateside population control program that is repeated daily in countries around the world. And who really knows? Perhaps the real objective of the Tuskegee experiment was not to discover anything about untreatable syphilis, but to carry out a behavior control experiment on "voluntarism" with human subjects.

More Eugenic Connections

Characterizing the Tuskegee experiment as a population control program should be judged in view of the fact that Dr. Foster has also been identified, this time by eugenics researcher, Katherine O'Keefe, as a 1992 member of the Board of Directors of the massive population control operation, the Pathfinder Fund. It was financed by Clarence Gamble of the Proctor and Gamble fortune, obviously another example of the "tithing" of industrialists to the Eugenics Establishment's destruction of huge blocks of human beings.

Needless to say, Randy Engel, in 1981, produced the definitive work on the Pathfinder Fund, which however, because of space restrictions, cannot be adequately treated.

No Public Testimony

Finally, it is indeed unfortunate that the Republican held Labor and Human Resources Committee, when it opens hearings on Foster in April or May, will not be allowing oral public testimony. That dictum shall prevent Randy Engel from being not only the person who uncovered Dr. Foster's darker side, but she who could have explained him to himself but who would have also, as on so many other occasions, revealed those who have made him what he is.

As well, she could have explained all of this to every American listening and watching C-SPAN and the national evening news. It is ironic that the O.J. Simpson trial, and the Menendez brothers' trial before it, as well as all of the dead bodies and murderers in between who have been set before us on television as a new form of "bread and circuses," cannot compete, for horror and mayhem and death, with the record of our prospective Surgeon General.

Only when such as Randy Engel is able to produce a documentary for prime time will Americans understand just who are the murderers and who have made them "respectable."

"No Standing"

At any rate, Randy and I had one of our lesser War and Peace length (as our husbands call them) phone conversations. She said, "I am now going to just sit back and watch how all of this comes out. If Foster gets in, then we'll know where we stand." A recent audio tape by Malachi Martin found him describing the overall position of Catholics in the world today, "You see, we have no standing, no standing whatsoever."

And all along the course of this century, that was the true and dogged aim of the Rockefeller axis and the others who preceded them. Through extending the Faustian Pact to men like Henry Foster and then having such as he extend it to average Americans, the eugenic heart of darkness — so well and horribly described by Joseph Conrad for that continent where this all began — was ignited in Everyman.

For the real meaning of "eugenics" is to introduce people to their mere animal nature to watch them devolve into such, voluntarily and happily kill their fellow man and even themselves, and naming this both natural and good.

"Kiss my ring and get out of my diocese"

When Archbishop Plourde expelled nine traditional priests and brothers from his diocese, a city was shocked and outraged. Now James W. Demers tells of the modernists' war on the Faith, against the backdrop of the gripping Ottawa Oratory drama. Powerfully written, you won't be able to put it down.

Paul Likoudis of the Wanderer says, "This is a powerful book. Like dynamite it blows away the facade of the swarming smiles of the liberal Catholic establishment and delivers a searing exhortation of the idiocies ruining the Catholic Church..." Malachi Martin says the book, "should be obligatory reading for all USA churchmen...and it should be obligatory reading for every one of the 180 members of the Roman College of Cardinals."
