Dr. Kinsey Is Dead; Sex Researcher, 62

By The Associated Press.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Aug. 25—Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, who gained world-wide fame for his books on human sexual behavior, died today of a heart ailment and pneumonia. He was 62 years old.

The zoologist had been in ill health for six months. He was admitted to Bloomington Hospital Wednesday, but his condition had not been considered critical until last night.

Dr. Kinsey's illness had interrupted his busy schedule of travels to collect material for new sex-research projects—on men in prison, on Europeans and on animals.

His wife, Mrs. Clara Bracken McMillen Kinsey, one of his early students at Indiana University, was with him when he died. Also surviving are a son, Bruce, of Cleveland, and two daughters: Mrs. Robert Reed, wife of a physician in Colum-

Freight cars are scattered across the tracks on the Canal Street trestle in Stamford.

Service on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad was disrupted yesterday by derailment of a freight train at Stamford, Conn. From 3:30 A. M., when the mishap occurred, until early evening incoming trains were two to three hours late. Outbound trains operated irregularly and some were canceled. Until late afternoon all four main line tracks were impassable in Stamford at a point just west of the Canal Street bridge. Passengers in both directions were transferred to a bus at that point and South Shore buses. At 5:10 P. M. the line was reopened. It then was discontinued.
