

Heterophobia

by Robert H. Goldsborough

"Heterophobia" can not be found in the dictionary, but can be easily understood as "the violent hatred and fear of heterosexuals".

Those who practice heterophobia are called heterophobes and are usually militant homosexuals and their brainwashed allies who demand that the constitutionally guaranteed first amendment right of free speech be denied to heterosexuals who object to the homosexual lifestyle because it is a perversion condemned in the Bible.

Several years ago, after the heterophobes attacked the TV celebrity Anita Bryant because of her personal Christian conviction that homosexual behavior is immoral, she lost her corporate advertising support.

This summer the heterophobes used blasphemous demonstrations and disruptive marches to attack the Catholic Church's Jubilee Year celebrations in Rome.

Then, in July, when the Supreme Court ruled that homosexuals could be denied positions as scoutmasters, heterophobic homosexuals planned to undermine Boy Scout fund-raising.

Another recent target of the heterophobic gang is Dr. Laura Schlessinger, the popular conservative radio talk show host who defends traditional family values and speaks out against any and all sexual promiscuity whether homosexual or heterosexual. (Apparently, she has also spoken out against other groups including liberal librarians, witches, and New Age vegetarians.)

"Dr. Laura" is loved by her listening audience of approximately 18 million, but she is hated by many others because of her straightforward, no-holds-barred approach to those who live a lie. In her book, How Could You Do That?! The Abdica- tion of Character, Courage, and Conscience, she minces no words, "acknowledging that you are basically the perpetrator of your mess of a life is admittedly very upsetting". As one writer observed, "Her therapeutic method consists largely of browbeating hapless callers into making that admission". Dr. Laura wants people to take responsibility for their own actions.

Therein lies the problem for heterophobic homosexuals.

Heterophobes simply cannot accept personal responsibility for their deviant acts. And so Dr. Laura Schlessinger is their current target and must be silenced at all costs. After months of protests failed to convince the Paramount Television Groups to cancel plans to produce a "Dr. Laura" television show scheduled for September, intense organized pressure on her sponsors began in April.

In May, the heterophobic campaign against Dr. Laura succeeded in getting Proctor and Gamble to drop its planned advertising on her TV show. "Radio sponsors began dropping immediately after that, though Paramount executives said no other advertisers have abandoned the TV show," reported the July 24, New York Times. Sponsors who have severed their ties with the Schlessinger radio show include: Toys "R" Us; United Airlines; AT&T; Kraft; General Foods and Xerox.

The GEICO insurance company also ceased sponsorship of her radio show during early July. The Times reported that GEICO dropped its advertising because of the controversy, adding "GEICO is an equal opportunity employer and does not condone discrimination of any type." Oh, really? Doesn't GEICO "discriminate" against youthful male drivers when they buy auto insurance?

Dr. Schlessinger is now urging her listeners to start a letter and e-mail campaign thanking those sponsors who have remained on her radio show. Because of the heterophobic attacks, she also will begin making on-air plugs for her sponsors, personally urging her listeners to buy their products. On her web-site DrLaura.com, she describes the fight as a heated battle over traditional family values.

Dr. Schlessinger told The Times that the campaign against her has spread to her personal life, citing "personal threats to me and letters sent to neighbors with no return address telling them to accost me verbally.

"I think it's a pretty disgusting, relentless attack on my life, on my career, on my work," she said.

Concerned Americans should realize that the vicious and violent heterophobic attacks to silence Dr. Schlessinger are but a prelude to open warfare against traditional Christian morals and family values. This warfare was foretold by Michael Swift, the militant homosexual poet who wrote:

"... the family unit — spawning ground of lies ... which only dampens imagination and curbs free will, must be eliminated."
